"THE CONJURING"

"The Conjuring" is about two paranormal investigators who help out a family living in an old farmhouse haunted by the angry spirits of past owners. This movie was definitely one of the most terrifying I watched, with jump scares and creepy-looking demons. It had me on the edge of my seat the whole time. The plot line made perfect sense as the movie went on. The movie was based on a true story, which made the fear factor double.

"SINISTER"

"Sinister" is about a famous crime-novel author who moved his family so he could get inspiration for a new story. He finds a box of films in his new house with videos of eight brutal murders which occurred in the United States, with one of them happening in his own backyard. He soon finds out his house is filled with demons and the spirits of the family who were hung from a tree in his backyard. This movie was pretty creepy, but the build up to the scariest part was way too long. It actually got boring at moments. The jump scares were totally unexpected though, which made it scarier.

"THE VISIT"

"The Visit" is about two children spending a week at their grandparent's house, whom they have never met before. They soon realize their grandparents are not who they think they are. The movie is filmed by the grandchildren in the form of a documentary they are making. This movie was creepy, but it only had one jump scare. The plot made sense though, and the storyline was hair-raising.

“INSIDIOUS”

“Insidious” is about a family who does everything they can to keep demons and evil spirits out of their new home, and young son, who’s in a mysterious coma with no known cause. This movie took a little while to get to the scary parts, but it was frightening (in a good way). Some of the demons looked a little fake, which made the movie not as scary as it could have been.

“THE CABIN IN THE WOODS”

“The Cabin in the Woods” is about a group of five friends who travel deep into the woods to spend a weekend in a cabin. They soon found out the cabin is controlled by a group of people who make the friends choose their own death obliviously to “sacrifice” them to the gods. This movie had a mediocre concept, but the organization and plot line just didn’t make sense as the movie went on. Although there were a few scary scenes, overall the movie didn’t make much sense.
